2022 Dementia Arts Impact Awards

If you are a visual or performing artist breaking new ground, creating original work that challenges our assumptions about dementia and Alzheimer's Disease, working with your community in novel ways, or inspiring creativity in those with memory loss, we encourage you to apply for this year's Dementia Arts Impact Awards.

In 2022, a cohort will be selected featuring a variety of artists from across the creative spectrum. Artists may come from the visual arts (painting, coloring, sculpting, film), music (listening to, singing, and playing music) drama/movement (acting, storytelling, dance, choreography, playwriting, and expressive movement), songwriting, or poetry (writing and reading of poetry).

The award is a partnership! Artists will work with top experts in the dementia field with an aim to break new ground, artistically and clinically. Each awardee:

- receives a grant of $2,500 - 5,000 to advance their work.
- helps build the Dementia Arts community through a cohort of artists and expert clinicians in the dementia field.
- participates in one-on-one mentorship on working within the dementia community.
- receives essential marketing technical support, including a professionally produced video and expert social media collaboration.
- is able to partner with Dementia Spring on marketing, outreach and community engagement
